Margaret never sensing any harm, she had been told that the world was a safe and secure place, and that she should not worry. But now, she was faced with the reality of a world that was not so safe, and she was beginning to see the truth. She was beginning to see the truth about the world, and she was beginning to see the truth about the people in it. She was beginning to see the truth about the people who were not so good, and she was beginning to see the truth about the people who were not so kind. She was beginning to see the truth about the people who were not so honest, and she was beginning to see the truth about the people who were not so brave. She was beginning to see the truth about the people who were not so good, and she was beginning to see the truth about the people who were not so kind. She was beginning to see the truth about the people who were not so honest, and she was beginning to see the truth about the people who were not so brave.
